DO-IT-YOURSELF SCIENCE

Storm in a bottle

Whip up your own storm clouds with this easy and fun experiment.

You'll need

- A clear plastic bottle with a lid (1.25L or larger)
- Water
- Matches

Clouds are made from water droplets that form around dust or smoke particles in the atmosphere.

Step 1
Pour a small amount of water into the bottle and screw on the lid.

Step 2
Shake until the sides of the bottle are wet.

Step 3
Squeeze the bottle tightly, release and observe what happens.

Step 4
Open the bottle, light a match and drop it inside (it will go out once it touches the water).

Step 5
Replace the lid and squeeze the bottle again (as for step 3).

Cloud-making facts: What's happening?
Water mixes with the air inside the bottle to form water vapour when the bottle is shaken. Some of this vapour will condense when smoke is added to the bottle, forming tiny water droplets. These droplets condense around the smoke particles suspended in the air inside the bottle and reflect the light, allowing you to see them as white or grey clouds. When you squeeze the bottle, the water droplets will evaporate into the air as the air pressure inside the bottle increases. The clouds will disappear as the droplets evaporate.
